

I've got Junipero Serra

Who's got important Mormon leader who moved followers west, and set up colony of New Zion?

I've got Brigham Young

Who's got coined by John J. O'Sullivan, it was belief that God wanted the United States to own North America and move westward?

I've got Manifest Destiny

Who's got daring young American trappers who hunted for furs, probing the Rockies, making important discoveries and trails?

I've got Mountain Men

Who's got become Mexican citizens, convert to Catholicism, accept Mexican Constitution, which included a ban on slavery

I've got what Anglos were required to do in exchange for cheap land grants

Who's got the group caught in the Sierra Nevadas in winter 1846-47, with many dying of starvation, example of dangers faced by emigrants

I've got Donner Party

Who's got "Napoleon of the West," ruthless general who seized power in Mexico, favored centralized, authoritarian government?

I've got Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna

Who's got an adopted Cherokee, he was the first president of the Lone Star Republic

I've got Sam Houston

Who's got annexation of Texas and the possession of the Oregon Territory

I've got key issues during the Presidential Election of 1844

Who's got territory purchased from Mexico as potential route for a transcontinental railroad—land formed New Mexico, California, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, and half of Colorado

I've got Gadsden Purchase

Who's got suggested a ban on slavery in the territories obtained from Mexico, bringing issue of slavery before Congress?

I've got Wilmot Proviso

Who's got cheap land, access to Asian markets, new domestic resources for production, divine will

I've got some major reasons for Manifest Destiny and expansion westward

Who's got when a Mexican patrol unit clashed with American soldiers along the contested borderland south of Nueces River to the Rio Grande

I've got event that started the Mexican-American War in 1846

Who's got excluded African Americans, both slave and free—fearing competition from cheap labor

I've got California constitution.

Who's got events that stretched the nation's boundaries all the way to the Pacific by 1848

I've got Louisiana Purchase, annexation of Texas and Oregon, and the war with Mexico

Who's got Whig presidential candidate who opposed war with Mexico, and the Democratic candidate who favored expansionism?

I've got Henry Clay and James K. Polk, respectively

Who's got small Texan garrison in San Antonio that became the rallying cry for Texan independence

I've got the Alamo

Who's got forced Mexico to give up northern third of our their country, adding 1.2 million miles of territory to United States

I've got Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo

Who's got charged tolls at bridges and fords. . . sold the emigrants bacon, beef and vegetables, and charged to ferry emigrants across the Kansas River. . .

I've got some of the business dealings between the "Forty-Niners" and the Native Americans?

Who's got real danger on the plains for migrants heading west, and not threat of Indian raids?

I've got disease: cholera, fevers, chronic dysentery and death from dehydration

Who's got larger population, superb military officers trained at West Point, and larger, better-equipped navy?

I've got advantages enjoyed by the US in the Mexican-American War

Who's got more efficient method of mining that required more equipment + money, but greatly damaged environment by leveling hills and clogging rivers?

I've got hydraulic mining

Who's got treaty drafted in 1851 that restricted Plains Indians to territories away from major trails

I've got Treaty of Fort Laramie

Who's got Franciscan priest who set up a string of missions in Spanish North America converting many Indians during late 18th century